One day my friend Lisa told us about a man who was named Bill.

Bill had many brothers and sisters when he was a little boy. His parents worked very hard, but the family was still poor. They had only small pieces of bread for their food every day. Sometimes they didn't have anything to eat, so they were always talking about (ア).

Bill wanted to study at school, but he had to work for money when he was thirteen years old. He (find) a job at a restaurant. He was not paid enough money for his work, but he liked it because the manager of the restaurant was very kind to him. He worked hard during the day, and after (イ) he studied at the library.

At the age of fifteen, Bill began to go to a night school. He met very good teachers there, and was (teach) many things by them.

When Bill was twenty-five years old, he could get his own store. He married a nice woman, too. They had a happy life with two sons and one daughter. But after some years he became seriously sick and couldn't keep his store. He (lose) it after all. Soon he got well, but had to work harder than before to get it again. It was very difficult for him to do so, but he succeeded in it because his family and his friends helped him very much. He never (forget) to thank for it. He always tried to be kind to other people.

Lisa asked Bill, "Do you think that money is the most important thing in life for you?"

" A There are more important things than money."

"Really? What are they?"

"Well, my family and my friends," answered Bill.

"This is the man that I love very much. This man is my father," Lisa said and finished her story.

5] 次の英文を読んで、後の問いに答えなさい。(20点)

In 1988, Audrey went to Tokyo to be at a special concert for UNICEF. Many people came to the concert because she was there. She loved children, and wanted to help many weak and sick children in the world. That day in Tokyo, UNICEF asked Audrey to become a special ambassador for UNICEF. Audrey said "yes". At that time many children in Ethiopia were dying of hunger. They asked her to go there (できるだけ早く). A few days later, with one suitcase, Audrey left the house she loved and flew to Ethiopia. There she saw everything. Then she came back and told the world. She saw children in hospital, children dying and children hungry. Ethiopia needed money, food, clothes and medicine. She asked the world to help, and the world answered her call.

From then Audrey did not stop. The children of the world moved her. Their needs gave her new power. (彼女は以前には決してできなかったことをした), for example, to have interviews. As an actress she didn't want to have interviews. Now she sometimes had fifteen a day. Also, she slept very little. Because her days were so busy, she often got up at four in the morning for the cameramen who hoped to take her photos. And she never stopped her trip.

UNICEF works in 128 countries, and Audrey went to many of them. Her face, her words with the images of children were always in newspapers and on TV all over the world. Starving children became her children. (彼らのために働くことが彼女の人生になった). In the end, too, she gave her life for them.

In 1992, already very thin, Audrey began to feel strong pains. But she didn't go to see a doctor and went to Somalia. There she was deeply moved one day when a thin six-year-old girl ran across the sand into her arms and hugged her. It was like a word of thanks from millions of children around the world. It was a kind of goodbye, too, for Audrey. She had cancer. Some months later, on Wednesday, 20 January, 1993, she fell asleep for the last time at her home in Switzerland. The last words she spoke were "my dear children of Somalia."
