A man worked at a factory in town for several years. But one month ago it closed, and now he had no job.

He was driving his car when it began to snow, so he slowed down. He saw an old lady (ア) [stand] at the side of the road. He thought she needed help, and stopped his car. She had a smile on her face, but she looked worried, so he said, "I will help you. How about (イ) [wait] in the car? It's warmer. By the way, my name is John."

John looked at her car and found that it *had a flat tire. John quickly changed the tire, although his clothes got dirty. She was very *grateful to him.

①She asked him how much she should pay him. However, ②John never thought about taking money from her. He was helped by a lot of people before, so it was natural for him to help someone else. *That was how he lived his life. He said to her, "If you really want to pay me back, please help people in need, and think of me." That lady thanked him and (ウ) [drive] away. It was a cold day, but he felt warm inside.

After driving for a few minutes, the lady stopped at a small restaurant. ③The waitress came over and gave her a towel for her to dry her wet hair. (a)She had a beautiful smile. Clearly, the waitress was going to have a baby soon. She looked very tired, and the old lady thought she must have a hard life. The old lady thought, "How can she be so kind to a stranger?" Then (b)she remembered John.

After she finished eating, the lady paid with a hundred-dollar bill. The waitress went to get her change, and the lady went out of the door quietly. A kind man helped me, just as I'm helping you. ⑤If you really want to pay me back, don't end this chain of help."

That night when the waitress went to bed, she thought about the old lady. She and her husband needed money since they were going to have a baby very soon.
